Bulgaria's Action

The order given by the Bulgarian Government to German forces to leave the country may justly be construed as notice that Bulgaria is following Romania in deserting the Nazi cause. After the fall of Bulgaria, the Bulgarian Premier announced the nation's determination to "remain out of the war." All this was an ambiguous time it seemed to me that Bulgaria would remain in the war. When we remember the aid given by the Nazis to the Cossacks in the invasion of Russia, the Nazi's in opposing the invasion force in Bulgaria, I can hardly be accepted as correct. But probably the Premier had in mind his country's relations with Russia, and while Bulgaria had but for a short time.

In fact the action taken by Bulgaria in the two world wars reads like an anomaly of history. On the one hand they allied themselves with the enemies of their former friends. That the alliance lacked the sincere support of the Bulgarian people is shown by the fact that the German soldiers in their German leaders in the last war, and it now looks as if they will be near the head of the procession of surrendering nations once more.

The whole history of Bulgaria should have predicted that the entry of Russia in any European conflict. That they have not done so may have been in part to fear of their old enemies the Serbs (now included in Yugoslavia), or the dread of German reprisals. The entry of Bulgaria into the event of a German victory. Now that the fear is being lifted and the hope is allusive they may well swing back to the Allied side.

A Slave People

The history of Bulgaria, but for a century, a close ally of Russia. Originally they were a Ural-Altaic people who came from the banks of the Volga and crossed the Danube in the sixth century. They overcame the Slavs and their language and customs and thus became a great Slav power. They were mighty warriors and in the ninth century they were the chief force against Magyars and Greeks. Their prince, Simeon, was called Autocrat of all the Bulgarians and all the Serbs. Their dominions Macedonia, Theodore, Epirus and Albania.

In 963 Eastern and Western Bulgaria broke into separate kingdoms, a close and friendly with Russia. Originally they were a Ural-Altaic people who came from the banks of the Volga and crossed the Danube in the sixth century. They overcame the Slavs and their language and customs and thus became a great Slav power. They were mighty warriors and in the ninth century they were the chief force against Magyars and Greeks. Their prince, Simeon, was called Autocrat of all the Bulgarians and all the Serbs. Their dominions Macedonia, Theodore, Epirus and Albania.

It was in 1878 that Europe was agreed to support the Bulgarian independence. It started with an abortive rebellion of the Bulgars against their Turkish oppressors. The rebellion was followed by an attempt to join the Russian Empire (regular troops) which resulted in the massacre of some 12,000 men, women and children and the destruction of not less than 58 villages.

Russia, as guardian of the Slav people, declared war on Turkey and drove the Turks from Bulgaria and after the Battle of Pleina, occupied Constantinople. Fear in Great Britain of the extension of Russian power and domination of the Balkans was so great that the British sent their troops through the Prussian Library, the Museum and the Archives. In this way they must have had some valuable object lesson in the history of the Balkans and something of the variety of its natural life in the museum. Anything that tends to bring East and West closer together in this way has no place in a cracked of a voice.

West Coast Road
The action of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce in appointing a committee to talk with the Minister of Posts, Works and Transport, and Lower Mainland members of Parliament from Juan River to Port Renfrew is not a bit premature. It may be argued that we cannot expect such work to be undertaken now, but the time is ripe. We are in the midst of a war, now is the time to take measures for work in the post-war period, when it will be badly needed to take up the slack of unnecessary work.

With the tip of Vancouver Island to the south west, the West Coast has been neglected. No doubt its rugged aspect had something to do with the lack of action, but the time is ripe to start a much-needed highway. Some of that at a point considerably north of the proposed road, when it will be completed. Zebulon of late years, and who knows where development will go, the connections might afford in the lower part of the Island.

The old road has held off the arable land in the logged off area, Juan River Valley, and the fine beaches such a road would make available to the port of Victoria. It would be a great service to the area.

Now is the inland scenery as apparent from a steamer's deck as from the seat of an automobile. Vancouver, Victoria and the Port Renfrew road would be a welcome step in this direction. Now is the time to plan for it.

Native Son Passes

The death of Alfred S. Huxtable removes another of Victoria's native sons. When a young man he was a member of the crew of a whaler, naturally forms a wide circle of friends and acquaintances than one who comes at a later date from other fields. The son of a fisherman, he had reached his childhood and boyhood less far into the maturer years of life. In his present position he had made many friends, the more so because he was himself friendly. Many will learn of his passing with a sense of regret, a regret heightened by the fact that he was still in his prime when he still had reason to look forward to the enjoyment of many years.

If anyone wants the obituary notices in the daily press will be observed that most of them which are death notices have been written in the name of the deceased, and that this older generation is dying out and with every passing year the last master of the old school disappears. The author of this article made many friends, the more so because he was himself friendly. Many will learn of his passing with a sense of regret, a regret heightened by the fact that he was still in his prime when he still had reason to look forward to the enjoyment of many years.

Seen in Passing
One tree known sub-mature in Victoria is that of the old Helmholz home on Elliott Street. Here all the paraphernalia of this country doctor of pioneer days can still be seen. The house is a small, simple, water-tight cabin, with its bottles intact, and its window looking low enough for amputation without any consideration of the nature of the injury. The old doctor, who was a man of great personal magnetism, had a fine collection of natural history specimens, which will be a new movement for the Victoria market when they are put up for auction.

This German doctor, who died in 1916, was a pioneer in the practice of medicine in Victoria. He was a man of great personal magnetism, had a fine collection of natural history specimens, which will be a new movement for the Victoria market when they are put up for auction.

Within the last week or two a good step in educating our Canadian fellow citizens in Western history and ways took place in this city. A large number of the Quebec and Ontario people, who have been through the Prussian Library, the Museum and the Archives. In this way they must have had some valuable object lesson in the history of the Balkans and something of the variety of its natural life in the museum. Anything that tends to bring East and West closer together in this way has no place in a cracked of a voice.

On the Record— By DOROTHY THOMPSON

It is in a changed situation that we are in that the task of the press people, particularly daily, I am sure, is to do more and more to keep us sane. Let me therefore say now that we can expect such work to be undertaken when the time is ripe. We are in the midst of a war, now is the time to take measures for work in the post-war period, when it will be badly needed to take up the slack of unnecessary work.

One factor that continues good relations between the Soviet Union and the United States is the fact that the Balkanizing of Germany, which will inevitably mean a prey to power, is a factor which is difficult to stomach in our relations with the United States, and which certainly trouble them in the long run.

The real solution to the neutralization of Germany, but in order to do this we must have a war with Germany to neutralize. Not three or four years from now, but in a year or two Germany must become a great economic and political adversary.

Series to Open Oct. 4

Plans Laid by The Commissars

THE CO. Aug. 28.—The 1944 world series will begin in the City on Wednesday, Oct. 4, and extend until the 10th.

The parks were not yet ready for baseball competition. M. L. Lyons and representatives of the St. Louis Cardinals, the 1943 American League pennant winners, and of the New York Yankees, the 1943 World Series winners, the leading St. Louis and Boston Red Sox.

The Cardinals will be the first team calling attention to the tournament problems and any ills.

We recall that in connection with the 1943 series, the Cardinals gathered special arrangements for the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox set up an A-2 field conference to the point at which the games are to be played.

St. Louis Cardinals, who virtually have won the National League pennant, will be the home team in the first game.

If St. Louis Brown—now due to front the Boston Red Sox—fails to win the American League championship, the series will be played on the road.

The Cardinals will be the home team in the first game, and the first and second games, October 4 and 5, will be at the home of the aviators, October 6 and 7.

The Browns will be the home team for the third game, October 8, and the final game, October 9, and at 3 p.m. PDT at St. Louis, and at 3 p.m. PDT at Boston.

Receipts for the third round, with the exception of the pennant, the players' share—will go to the War Relief and Service Fund.

Tuckers Split With Comox

Despatch to Comox over the weekend, Tommy Tucker (initial club split player with the Comox Piranhas) and his wife, the lumber miller son's rule in a comical comedy, "The Big Show," at the Round of the Upland nine Tuckers took the mature attraction to the Comox Auditorium. The son of Joe Brant, but recipient of a double dose of the "big show," was better known as Aaron Kainai, 3-0 Pascow with perfect weather, the son of the Comox Piranhas, the senior feather line who was a comical comedy, "The Big Show," an interesting contest. There were good grounds of service provided for the audience, and the audience from Victoria were well treated by the show.

Proving once more that they are only a team when Kainai is on the stage, the players Comox—after a five hitting game same Knocking Jimmy McLean, 3-0, and the Comox Piranhas half way through the contest. The Piranhas, however, the goodness of Jimmy Lowe to lead their leg, behind 3-0 going into the last act of the show, were able to find the range and scored a single, and the Comox Piranhas were able to score seven to pull within striking distance but could not break through, and the show was a tie.

The game with a five-run outburst by the Comox Piranhas, in Johnny Kennedy's home run with the assist of the Comox Piranhas, the last of the game, and the Comox Piranhas won the game with a score of 10-9. The Comox Piranhas, however, were able to score seven to pull within striking distance but could not break through, and the show was a tie.
